

GOVERNANCE ASSOCIATE CONSULTANTS

Self-employed; flexible

We are looking for experienced governance practitioners or existing governance consultants to join our small team on a self-employed basis. We are seeking individuals who can effectively provide advice and facilitation on governance to the housing, charity and third sectors. The work is interesting, varied and challenging. Successful candidates will have training or facilitation skills to at least a basic level, a solid knowledge base in governance, an understanding of risk and some experience as a non-executive director / Trustee. A background in law, governance or the housing sector is desirable. A background in learning and development would also be an advantage. You will need to be able to work independently, within our company standards and values, have excellent communication and report writing skills, and be able to provide advice and support on good practice. In addition, you'll lead training/development sessions and visit organisations to advise on systems and practice. You must be willing to travel across England and Wales.

The role will involve

- Meeting clients to diagnose needs and preparing proposals in response
- Delivering long and short term governance assignments such as board appraisals and governance reviews, board training and development, chief executive appraisals, facilitation for meetings and board away days and advice on mergers and group structures
- Acting as part of a consultant team for larger projects
- Project management and planning

It will ideally suit an experienced governance practitioner starting out in consultancy or a self employed consultant looking to work as part of a team.

If you are interested please send your CV in confidence and a letter of application outlining how you meet our requirements to recruitment@centralconsultancy.co.uk before the 21st March 2016

Central Consultancy and Training Ltd. are people and organisational development specialists offering bespoke learning and organisational development support to housing and social care and the broader third sector. With a reputation built over 35 years, we have an extensive portfolio of clients nationwide. Our consultants are senior, experienced learning and development professionals with strong backgrounds in housing, health and social care, local government and the private sector.

For more information about Central, please visit our website www.centralconsultancy.co.uk